13th Sociology of Conventions Workshop – Sustainability, Conventions, and Compromise
Faculty of Arts and Humanities, University Paderborn, Sept 26-27, 2024

Organizers:
Stephan Dahmen (stephan.dahmen@upb.de), Educational Science
Lisa Knoll (lisa.knoll@upb.de), Sociology

Team:
Maurice Paschen (mpaschen@campus.uni-paderborn.de)
Lynn Isken (lynn.isken@campus.uni-paderborn.de)

The Sociology of Conventions Workshop is a regular venue for scholars working on Sociology of Critique and Justification, or Économie des conventions. The workshop series exists since 2013 with a first meeting in Basel and since continues growing and developing.

The workshop at the University of Paderborn in September 2024 focuses on the enigmatic and ambiguous promise of ‘sustainability’. Sustainability has become very important in our organizational and institutional lives in the last decades, in education, finance, companies, public administration, development policy, etc. Sustainability is a versatile programme that comes across in terms of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals of the UN, the three pillar model including social, environmental and economic goals, or in the form of ESG (Environment, Social and Governance) in companies accounting standards. Sustainability is in many ways a question of measuring and then ranking, a classical theme of conventions of quantification. Besides these more technical questions of operationalization, sustainability also tackles bigger questions of justice and moral order. Sustainability fosters questions of inequality and injustice, as much as public, private and public-private finance, as well as the (plural) relation(s) with nature that humans create and live from. At stake are the political, organizational and institutional forms of society more general that are under scrutiny in a declared sustainable transformation – a process full of societal conflict and controversy. The sociology of conventions, with its focus on processes of measurement and quantification, and its idea of an intertwined moral order that changes through a cycle of critique and justification provides a promising analytical lens to study sustainable transformations.

At this year’s Conventions Workshop in Paderborn, we have Gaël Plumecocq as a keynote speaker. Gaël Plumecocq is Researcher at INRAE (National Institute for Agriculture, Food and the Environment) in Toulouse, France. He is co-president of the French Association for Political Economics (AFEP) and member of the Toulouse Workshop for Political Ecology (ATECOPOL). His researches bridge convention theory with ecological economics, analyzing how social values and shared knowledge shape organizations and structure different relationships to nature. Recent works focus on quantification as a valuation language.

Sociology of Conventions workshops use to have an overarching theme, but they are open to scholars working on different subjects, as well. Scholars from all disciplines are cordially invited to present planned and/or ongoing empirical and theoretical work, not restricted to the topic of sustainable transformation, only. Reflecting the interdisciplinary character of the sociology of conventions, ranging from the field of education, economics, and political and social sciences, the workshop is open to presentations reflecting and dealing with methodological and conceptual questions of research design, more generally. Presentations and input from early career researchers are particularly welcome.

In Paderborn, we will have three formats of participation:

Paper Presentation with discussant, Abstract deadline, Paper deadline (open to sustainability and other themes)

Methodology and research design puzzles (abstract deadline, presentation only, no paper, open to sustainability and other themes)

Roundtable with experts on the sociology of conventions, with a particular focus on sustainability research (Gaël Plumecocq, Sarah Lenz, Lisa Knoll, N.N., suggestions welcome)

Keynote by Gaël Plumecocq on “Is monetary valuation of biodiversity a «bad» convention?” (listen, think, enjoy, and discuss)

Please let us know about your participation (title and abstract) until March 31, 2024 indicating in what way you are planning to participate, and/or contribute (Email mpaschen@campus.uni-paderborn.de). We make our program decision till April 30, 2024. We would then need your final title and/or paper till August 30, 2024.

Workshop Location
University of Paderborn
“Stadtcampus”
Königsplatz 1
33098 Paderborn

Access video description: LINK
Keynote Location
Room I 407
Warburger Str. 100
33098 Paderborn

Hospitality Options
Catering during the workshop will be provided and includes (vegetarian) lunch as well as coffee/tea breaks on both days.

We will book two affordable restaurants to eat out on Wednesday evening and Thursday evening (at one's own expense).

Hotel Options
We reserved a number Hotel Options for Conference Participants that can directly be booked via a dedicated Link: (Link: https://www.paderborn.de/tourismus-kultur/hotels-restaurants/University.php) Deadline for booking: 11th August 2024. Prices are fixed rate and include Breakfast, you might find better prices via the usual booking portals.

Arthotel ANA Fleur (93 Euro per room/night)
Hathumarstraße 22; 33098 Paderborn
25 min. walk to University, 5 min. to Workshop Location

Best Western Plus Arosa Hotel (117,- Euro per room/night)
Westernmauer 38, 33098 Paderborn
30 min. walk to University, 5 min. to Workshop Location

Hotel Aspethera (102,- Euro per room/night)
Am Busdorf 7, 33098 Paderborn
20 min. walk to University, 10 min. to Workshop Location

Additional Hotel Options can be found here: (LINK). These can be only be booked directly via the Hotel Websites:

Guesthouse Witteborg (approx. 59€/night/shared bathrooms)
Warburger Str. 92
33098 Paderborn
5 min. walk to University, 15 min. to workshop location

B&B Hotel (approx. 59€/night)
Bahnhofstraße 3
33102 Paderborn
35 min. walk to University, 10 min. to workshop location